GOVERNMENTAL SYSTEM

The US is a representative democratic constitutional republic regulated by a series of checks and balances based on its Constitution. This includes three branches of federal government: Executive, Legislative and Judicial. The president serves four-year terms and can veto legislative bills (subject to approval by Congress), is commander-in-chief of the military (however only the legislative branch can declare war) and appoints the Cabinet (subject to approval by Congress). The Legislative branch is a bicameral congress of the Senate and House of Representatives, this branch can do pretty much anything with a 2/3 vote that the Judicial branch doesn't find unconstitutional.

FOREIGN POLICY

Police the World! How varies from term to term.

ISSUES SUMMARY

Racism, Sexism, Terrorism, Poverty, Education, Transportation, Immigration, Environmental Pollution, National Debt, Weak Leadership, Congressional Stagnation, etc.

RELATIONSHIP WITH THE UN

Strained due to the US tensions with Middle Eastern Nations and the UN desire not to be a unipolar world with one superpower. However the UN recognizes the US as a necessary ally.

RELATIONSHIPS WITH OTHER UNSC MEMBERS

The US maintains semi-healthy relations with most UNSC Members. A special relationship with the UK, excellent relations with Australia and France, economic integrated with China, but declining with the Russia Federation.
